3030 State Street, sits on the western hillside of centrally located Mission Hills. As one of the "Three Sisters", this luxurious jewel of San Diego demands attention from the interstate, the airport, and the harbor crafts. The 3,670 sq ft home, completed in 1915, was designed by architect Walter S. Keller whose other works include the Cabrillo Theatre and Plaza Theatre Building in San Diego. Built by renowned developer of his time Albert Wuest, the home holds a rich history to pair with its rich design. This 3 bedroom, 2.5 bathroom home, complete with an additional guest apartment, embodies the essence of craftsmanship and hosts one of the most glorious views in a famously beautiful city.
