You must see this immaculately maintained home at the foot of Celo Mountain for yourself to truly appreciate the love that has gone into it. This spacious home sits at an elevation of 3200' on the side of one of the tallest peaks in the mountain group known as "The Blacks." The beauty of the rock and woodwork around the property is enhanced by the fact that it was affectionately and skillfully crafted by the sellers using materials sourced from the property itself. Inside be sure to admire the handsome mantle, handmade from Yancey County wood after curing for two years, also by the sellers. In the bathrooms you will find the custom-made cabinets - you guessed it, also built by the sellers - are a little higher than standard making it easy on the back for your daily grooming. If you enjoy feeding apples to deer from your back porch, watching wild turkeys strut in your yard, hiking to surrounding mountains from your own wooded trails, then this is the home for you.
