ICONIC. Designed by world-renowned London-architect John Pawson, this remarkable Telluride residence offers truly inspired minimalism in a most dramatic alpine setting. The collaboration between seller & architect was his first commission in the US & timelessly showcases Pawson's attentive focus on space, proportion, light and materials. Simultaneously the home captures the rugged vernacular of Telluride's rich Victorian mining era. Occupying an over-sized corner lot in a highly sought-after location within the town's national historic district, the home's clean lines and soaring light-filled spaces gracefully frame the surrounding mountains, while lush landscaping and an elevated private deck offer the ideal place to savor the setting. A design far ahead of its time.
