Boxhill Farm is simply awe-inspiring. She stands, regaled in Virginia's natural beauty, as an unassuming witness to the history of our great republic.

Sited on seven acres of beautiful meadowlands with pond, wooded areas, and stream that was part of a tract of land purchased from the original Jamestown owner in or around 1685, this serene estate is just 10 miles from the Nation's Capital.

The main house is graced by rich period detailing as well as modern conveniences. Original millwork seamlessly blends with more recent additions to create sunfilled spaces for entertaining or enjoying the sylvan views.

Formal living and dining rooms each open to stone patios, while the modern kitchen is flooded with natural sunlight. Warm wood cabinetry highlights original brickwork, yet retains the rustic charm of the original farmhouse motif. A private study, cozy family room and magnificent sun room complete the main level. The upper level features ...
